F.D.R. Is to Move Thanksgiving Up by One Full Week

To Issue Proclamation for November 23rd Instead of 30th

IT'S A HEADACHE

Football Managers, Calendar-Makers, Turkey-Growers Complain

CAMPBELL ISLAND, New Brunswick.—(AP)—President Roosevelt is going to move Thanksgiving Day up a week this year, he said at a press conference Monday at his mother's summer home.

For the last six years, he explained, planning that there is too long an interval between the Labor Day holiday and Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving Day toward the end of November, and that the time is too short between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

This sounds silly, he said, but stores, working people and retailers had proposed that Thanksgiving be changed from the usual last Thursday in November. This year Thanksgiving would normally fall on November 30, and Mr. Roosevelt has decided to issue a proclamation setting aside November 23 as Thanksgiving Day.

He recalled that in early days of the republic, a day in October was marked down for Thanksgiving, and that is not until after the Civil war that the last Thursday in November was selected for observance.

Headache to Football Officials

NEW YORK.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's plan to move Thanksgiving Day ahead a week provided a headache to football officials. If he does ahead with his idea of proclaiming November 23 as "Turkey Day" they will find their "classics" relegated to a mere late Thursday in November.

So far as many a traditional big game is concerned the Roosevelt plan might kick up more clamor than a hot half-back running the wrong way. All over the country, football games arranged well in advance are booked for November 30—Thanksgiving, the schedule-makers trusted. In the East there are Fordham-New York U. in their annual "battle of the Bronx," Cornell-Pennsylvania and some others of equal drawing power.

To move them back to the proposed new Thanksgiving date, November 23.

Big Melon Amazes New Jersey Crowd

Merrill Hazlett of Patmos Takes 125-Pounder to Plainfield, N. J.

The Plainfield, New Jersey, Daily Courier-News of August 9, published on its front page a double-column picture and story of Merrill Hazlett, former Patmos youth, holding a 125-pound Hensstead county watermelon.

The cut-lines beneath the watermelon read as follows:

"This young man is holding 125 pounds of watermelon—and it's all in one mind. The young man is Merrill Hazlett, 1078 Central Avenue, who brought 'Mother Nature's Masterpiece' back with him from a trip to Patmos, Ark., his birthplace, to prove melons grow here and to collect a bet."

The newspaper story says: "That's nothing, why down in Arkansas, they grow watermelons so big men have to roll them to trucks and two men have to lift them up."

"So spoke Merrill Hazlett, this community, during a recent discussion, and right there and then he had a bet on his hands, a challenge, to show the evidence or say no more."

"He returned this week from a trip to Patmos, Arkansas, and brought evidence to collect the bet."

"The melon, a 125-pounder, which he has displayed proudly before amazed crowds of Clark township residents, is 'only an average one' on the farm of its grower, Oscar Middlebrooks of near Hope, Ark., Mr. Hazlett asserts."

"Middlebrooks has grown a melon weighing 185 pounds, the largest ever grown, the local man said, and that is a lot of melon, since most of those grown in this area seldom are above 50 pounds."

"Mr. Hazlett recently returned after a visit to his mother, Mrs. John Latta of Patmos, Arkansas," the New Jersey newspaper article continued.

Here may be the biggest thing that the New Deal has turned loose yet. It is just beginning to pick up steam, and it has all the earmarks of being a self-accelerator. The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, which invented it, may yet find itself in the position of a man who has a bear by the tail.

Consider, for instance, the figures from Rochester, N. Y., where the plan got its first tryout. They apparently prove that somehow this plan creates an extra dollar's worth of food-buying power—out of thin air, maybe—for every government dollar that is put in to it.

Up Goes Sales Record
Total grocery sales in the Rochester stores patronized by the stamp users rose 12 per cent during the period under study—yet the blue stamps, in themselves, only accounted for half of that increase.

Evidently, the mere fact that the plan was in operation somehow created an increased demand for foodstuffs. Now go on from there. The $800-odd Rochester relief families which have been using the stamps like the idea—as why wouldn't they, when it adds 50 per cent of their buying power? The grocers like it, as they would naturally like anything that hikes business by 12 per cent.

The farmers like it, because—apparently, on the basis of these early figures—the buying of food is much to stimulate the direct-sales-and-distribution system of disposing of farm surpluses. And the Rochester merchants who have been getting this business have been spending more money on advertising, on store fixtures, and the like.

The FSCC is beginning to get a rise out of the bankers. The banks handle the food stamps, and draw cards in the plan that way; furthermore, they are likely to react favorably to anything which stimulates business among their commercial depositors. And the FSCC is beginning to get inquiries from bankers asking how about all of this, anyway, and is it as good as it looks?

Now a scheme which does all of those things is easy to start—and, once started, is likely to be mortally hard to stop.

No Experiment Now

The food stamp plan was an experiment three months ago. Now it is getting out of the experimental stage and being ready for 50 or 100 cities. You are hardly being over-imaginative if you begin figuring that sooner or later it might be expanded to apply to all of the reliefers in the United States.

But that is only the half of it. About the first of September, FSCC is starting a new experiment. It is going to make the blue stamps available to people in the low-income brackets who are not on relief at all. This is due to happen in Shawnee, Okla., and that experiment will be about as much worth watching as anything that will happen in the United States this summer.

Officials of the FSCC are frank to say that they don't know where the whole business is going. Will it eventually take in all the reliefers, plus all the low-income wage earners? If so, how many hundreds of millions will the money come from? They don't know and they won't even try to guess.

The one obvious fact is that they have hold of something big, which might easily turn out to be many, many times bigger than anyone dreamed when the experiment was first started.

Is to Veto Bill by Weisenberger

Governor Bailey Says It Infringes on the Refunding Measure

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Bailey announced Tuesday he would veto a bill by Representative Weisenberger of Hope designed to provide counties and cities with road and street construction funds.

The governor said his attorneys had advised him they believed the bill would deprive the executive and the State Board of Finance of the right to set up a sinking fund reserve as provided for in the 140-million-dollar refunding act.

CIO Demonstration Denied by Hutchens

CIO Representative Denies Any Connection With Labor Difficulty

William Hutchens, CIO representative of Hope, Tuesday issued a statement in which he denied there was a CIO labor demonstration at the scene of the courthouse construction job Monday. His statement follows:

"I have just read in the August 14 issue of the Hope Star, the most amazing article I have ever read in my life, in a public press. According to the headlines in your paper of that date, I led a parade of CIO pickets around the courthouse construction job. In the first place I was in Hope only about fifteen minutes Monday morning. In the second place, there was no CIO demonstration. In the third place I did not ask Mr. Edwards for employment for any CIO laborers."

"Monday morning about 8:30 or 9 o'clock I left for Arkansas. I returned to Hope about 3:30 p. m. I heard a rumor that there was trouble at the Court House but paid no heed to it until The Star was delivered at my home."

Commission Witness Urges Slash in Gas Rates

Says Ark.-La. Co. Could Earn Profits on Cheaper Rates

Vearley, Accountant for State Commission, Put on Stand Tuesday

COMPANIES CLOSE

All the Evidence Is in—Ark.-La. Co. Offers to Meet 10c Rate

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—A witness charged before the State Utilities Commission Tuesday that the rates charged by the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company throughout its entire system in this state were "too high."

The testimony came from Lon A. Vearley, chief accountant for the commission, appearing in the hearing on an application of the Louisiana-Nevada Transit company of Ada, Okla., for a permit to enter the gas distribution field in southwest Arkansas.

The Arkansas-Louisiana company is opposing the application.

"Could Reduce Rates"

Vearley said it was his opinion the Arkansas-Louisiana company could materially reduce its rates and still receive a fair return on its investment. He asserted his testimony was based on tabulations of expenses and revenues of the company for the years 1932-33.

The commission called Vearley to the stand after the two gas companies announced that they had closed their presentation of evidence.

The Arkansas-Louisiana company read into the record Tuesday morning a form to meet the terms proposed by the other company to the Ideal Cement company at Okay, Okla., Brick Works and the municipal Water & Light Plant of Hope.

"We want to adjust our rates any way you think we should," the commission was told by Attorney W. C. Fitzhugh for the Arkansas-Louisiana company. "We want to have a chance to live."

Offer 10c Rate

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company offered Monday to meet the Louisiana-Nevada Transit company's 10 cents per 1000 cubic feet rate for natural gas furnished by the Ideal Cement company at Okay, F. S. Kelley, Jr., of Shreveport, industrial engineer for the Arkansas-Louisiana, made the offer at a State Utilities Commission hearing on an application of the Louisiana-Nevada for a permit to distribute gas to the Okay plant and others in Southwest Arkansas.

Kelly said the 10-cent offer previously had been made in negotiations between his company and officials of the company owning the cement plant, who live at Denver.

The Arkansas-Louisiana's 14.5 cent per 1000 cubic feet contract with the cement plant expires Tuesday. The cement company has signed a 10-year contract with the Louisiana-Nevada at the 10-cent rate.

"We are willing to meet a 10-cent rate if this commission feels that we should," Kelly said.

Under cross-examination by Thomas Fitzhugh, commission chairman, Kelly said that if his company lost all its industrial customers, the loss would have to be borne by commercial and residential customers. Fitzhugh failed to obtain an answer to a question why the loss should not be borne by stockholders.

Kelly said it was the policy of the Arkansas-Louisiana to seek to attract new industries to Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas and that their efforts had been successful to some extent. He said the new industries were offered "fair, equitable rates" and that there had been substantial reductions in industrial rates since 1923.

Asked to Rescind Order

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company asked the Federal Power Commission Monday to rescind an order authorizing the Louisiana-Nevada Transit company to build and operate a natural gas pipeline from the Cotton Valley field in Webster parish, La., to Okay, Ark., with an extension to Hope, Ark.

Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company also asked that a rehearing be granted. It contended that it already served adequately the area involved.

General Shutdown in Oil Is Pending

Arkansas to Await Report From Oklahoma City Meeting

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—A shutdown of 177,800 idwells producing two-thirds of the crude that provides the nation's gasoline was debated by representatives of nine states here Tuesday as the remedy for the toppling price structure.

Two schools of thought predominated as the Interstate Compact Commission prepared to convene at 2 p. m.

There were those who believed a shutdown should be recommended throughout the entire midcontinent area. Others advanced the theory that the meeting would collapse, with each state adopting an "after you" attitude which might eventually end in a stalemate.

To Report for State

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Bailey said Tuesday O. C. Bailey, chairman of the Arkansas Oil & Gas Commission, would give him a report Wednesday on the Oklahoma City meeting of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission which is in progress Tuesday.

Pending his conference with the Arkansas chairman, the governor declined to comment on the request of State Senator Clyde Byrd of El Dorado that he urge the state commission to shut down Arkansas oil fields because of the current price reduction by the major companies.

Prior reductions and the action of the Texas commission in ordering a 15-day shutdown are under discussion at Oklahoma City.

"O. C. Bailey will be in my office Wednesday to give the Oil & Gas Commission and myself his report," the governor said. "I suppose the commission will take whatever action it considers appropriate. I am prepared to support whatever action the commission takes."

Giant U. S. Plane Is Sold to Japan

Huge Douglas Craft, Largest in World, Sold to an Air Line

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—(AP)—Sale of a 42-passenger DC4, the world's largest commercial land plane, to the Japan Air Transport Line was disclosed Monday by the Douglas Aircraft company.

Thus the firm entered the international race to book foreign business for giant, multi-engine planes. Douglas officials said Germany and Italy have demonstrated four and three-engine airplanes to the Japanese.

A spokesman for Douglas said military and State Department officials favored selling such a ship to foreign purchasers in order to upbuild America's own productive capacity. He said it was assured sale of the plane would not injure national defense.

The Japanese line made a substantial down payment on its $725,000 contract. It was reported the contract may exceed $1,000,000 and may include manufacturing rights through which the Japanese would be able to duplicate the craft abroad.

Moral Teaching Needed, But Who's to Do It?

The suggestion of a Cleveland grand jury that a course in morals be given in the public schools has been attracting no end of attention.

It should, for if the country and the world today need anything it is a sharpening of dulled moral senses.

But it does not follow that the public schools are necessarily the best place to bring about this revival. The reason is obvious. Not everybody agrees on what is moral and that is immoral. Practically everyone agrees that two and two are four, that antisemitism is spelled antisemitism, and that St. Louis is roughly due north of New Orleans.

But question three about the morality involved in quaffing a tall, cool mint julep. One will say, "It is an immoral act." The second will say, "It is not immoral, but it is most unwise." And the third will say, "It is not only quite moral, but a good idea to boot." In short, there is no general agreement on the morals involved in this quite simple act.

Therein lies the danger in trying to set up a program of moral teaching in the public schools. The more specific it is, the harder it is to arrive at a program that will not conflict with specific ideas of morals held by devotees of various religions, sects, and creeds. It would have to be confined to the most elemental and generally accepted principles.

Ohio's education director, E. N. Dietrich, commented that the public schools are already teaching morals. "It should be taught in everything we do. It isn't necessary to have a special course."

And of course that is true, too. Pupils cannot go to school together, nor study anything worthwhile under discipline, without learning something about morals. Some educators believe morals are one thing that cannot be taught, but which must be learned in association with others.

Many educators and penologists immediately suggested that trying to reduce crime among youth by moral teaching would never achieve as much as improvement in economic conditions, elimination of bad housing, providing jobs and adequate recreation facilities, and alleviation of sheer poverty. These breed crime faster than any moral teaching can eliminate it.

The interested aroused by this grand jury's suggestion, however, is such as to suggest that many, many people realize the problem.

Certainly it is not one to be laughed off or ignored, for the morals of this old world and its people have been one of its primary problems since Noah, and probably long before. Everybody and every institution which can make a real contribution to better personal and national morals today is fighting an old battle, but a necessary one.

Worms Require Treatment With Toxic Remedies; Doctors Should Prescribe

There are several varieties of worms that invade the human intestines, and many kinds of drugs that can be used to clean them out. The worms most common are the flat worms which include the tapeworm that is derived from beef, pork and fish, and the round worms which include the hookworm, ordinary round worms, the pinworm and the whipworm.

In a recent consideration of this question, experts listed more than a dozen different drug preparations in use which attack worms, all of them substances which, when taken in sufficient amount, are toxic or poisonous, and therefore to be taken only when prescribed by a doctor in suitable amounts.

It must be remembered that a child or person low in weight uses a smaller dosage of toxic drugs than does an adult.

Physicians have a difficult time in finding out when a person is really cured of a tapeworm infestation. One source of error is due to the fact that people who may be cured of worm infestation promptly become infested again by the same circumstances that caused it the first time. If, for instance, a person is cured of tapeworm infestation by taking the proper remedy, and it is known that he became infested from infested beef, pork, or fish, he is instructed to see to it that all of the beef, pork and fish that he eats is thoroughly cooked, so that he does not become infested again.

Conditions are different when round worms are concerned, because they get into the body directly instead of by means of intermediate animal. The larvae of the hookworm and the ordinary round worm get access to the soil and then get into the body, either by penetrating the skin, as in the case of the hookworm, or by introduction into the mouth.

The life cycle of the ringworm can take place entirely within the human body. This worm deposits its eggs around the bottom of the intestinal tract and the eggs then get back into the body by way of the mouth due to contaminated fingers.

It has been pointed out that the effectiveness of the remedies used as well as their method of administration may be modified by a number of factors. The amount of calcium in the body is important in relationship to the taking of remedies such as carbon tetrachloride. People with inadequate calcium are more sensitive to this drug than those with a high calcium reserve. When alcohol is given simultaneously with carbon tetrachloride, it increases both the absorption and the poisonous character of the remedy.

The treatment of infestation with pinworms has been found to be the most unsatisfactory of the treatments for all of the different kinds of worms. It demands almost cleanliness. Children who are treated for this condition should have their finger nails carefully cut and their hands kept scrupulously clean. It may be necessary to have the child wear gloves at night so that it cannot scratch. Continment may be placed on the bottom of the intestinal tract to control the infestation, and all of the clothing and linen used by the child must be boiled to prevent it from becoming reinfected by contamination of the clothing.

The drug hexylresorcinol, frequently used in the treatment of infestation of this type of worm must also be prescribed by a doctor who will make certain not only that the right dosage is given but also that the treatment following administration of the remedy is such as to eliminate the worm and the excess remedy promptly.

STAMP NEWS

WITHDRAWAL from sale at the Philatelic Agency of the 3-cent Hawaiian commemorative and the 3-cent purple George Washington stamp of the regular issue has been announced by the Postoffice Department. I then started out to find the pickets signs that were used, to ascertain whether or not there was any indication on them saying that they were authorized by any labor organization. There was no such indication. Only one mentioned the CIO and that was in the form of a demand that the pickets wanted the new U.C.W.O.C. that was recently organized by Dennis Lewis, all the information they had about it was taken from a copyrighted article that appeared in the Star some time ago.

After talking with the pickets and learning what their grievance was about, I compared it with another article that also appeared in the Star,

SERIAL STORY Murder on the Boardwalk

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, when Christine arrived in Surf City to visit her cousin Emma, there was no one to meet her. Christine called her cousin's home, but no one answered. She was disappointed. The telephone operator said, mysteriously, "If there's any trouble, you're off Main 2272."

CHAPTER II

"I WAS to tell you to get a room at the Crestview, and—"

Abruptly the agitated voice at the other end of the line broke off. When the girl spoke again, it was with the studied impersonality of the regimented operator: "I am sorry. Your party does not answer."

For a moment Christine sat, stunned, trying to grasp the entirety of the dilemma in which she found herself. She did not even try to understand the amazing conversation she had just finished.

She could go to the hotel, of course—but in the present state of her finances, any hotel bill assumed the dimensions of a national debt. . . . Or she might just sit here for the rest of the night. But in that event, how was she to get rid of that officious young man?

As she had expected, he was waiting inexorably when she went back to the platform.

"Well," he demanded.

"Well," Christine told him, catching at the first phrases lent to her tongue, "it seems that as the result of an unexpected domestic upheaval, my cousin had no one to send to meet me. So I'm to go to a nice, quiet hotel for the night."

"A nice, quiet hotel in Surf City?" He grinned. "Have you one in mind?"

Scrabbled about in her memory, Christine pulled out a name. "Crestview," the telephone girl had said. And Christine definitely recalled Cousin Emma's remarking once, "If there is a respectable hotel in Surf City, I suppose it's the Crestview."

"Oh, the Crestview, I suppose," Christine said casually.

"The Crestview, hm?" He looked at her with new interest. "Well, there's nothing like camping on the battlefield if you have Amalgamated shares to vote tomorrow."

"Battlefield?" Christine echoed. "I hear there's likely to be a right gory little war over that merger between Amalgamated and National at the stockholders' meeting. . . . But forget it. Well, shall we start? I'll drive you over. My car's out there."

"Thanks, but I'm taking a taxi," he shrugged.

"May I call one for you, or does your rugged individualism run to calling your own cabs?"

At that moment a taxi rolled into a berth at the end of the platform, and laughing a little, they hurried toward it.

While the driver was stowing Christine's bags away, the young man began almost diffidently, "Of course, I'm taking a chance of your shouting for the police, but the Crestview runs into money. . . . What I mean is—well, I know that young girls don't carry a lot around, especially when they're visiting relatives. If you—it would only be a loan—"

Christine thought, "It's strange, but I never felt this way about a man before—as if I'd known him forever—as if borrowing from him would be perfectly right and natural."

Aloud she said, "I'm really all right. But thank you, Mr.—"

"The feller," he told her, "call me 'Bill'. . . . I wish you would, Miss Talbert."

"But my name isn't Talbert. It's Thorenson—Christine Thorenson."

ONCE in her luxurious quarters at the Crestview, Christine emptied the contents of her purse on the bed and counted anxiously. When she had told the bareheaded young man that she was "all right," she had been guilty of a blash overstatement. After she had bought her railway ticket, she had left a thin sheaf of bills which she optimistically expected to stretch into pin-money and modest tips to Cousin Emma's household.

Now, after the extravagance of a night at the most "respectable" hotel in Surf City, she would barely have enough for a return ticket to New York—and no prospects to speak of after she got back.

"Oh, well," Christine told herself, "Cousin Emma must have made some arrangement for me. I'll hear from her tomorrow."

She took a bath in the luxurious tub, put on her best satin nightgown, and fell into a dreamless sleep.

When the sunlight awoke her early next morning, her immediate interest was only in breakfast.

She dressed carefully, selecting her green linen with the orange and black Balkan embroidery, which was perfect with the copper of her hair, and the open-laced pumps she had picked up for almost nothing at a little New York shop.

On her way through the hotel lobby it occurred to her that there must be a message from Cousin Emma, and stopped at the desk, but there was no message for Miss Thorenson.

Christine thought a little forlornly as she went down the Boardwalk, scrutinizing the menus posted in the windows of the cheaper restaurants. "I'll think of something—after I've had a good, strong cup of coffee."

But even after two cups—neither of them too good—in a small cafe rocking of fried potatoes, the only idea that occurred to Christine was that she was practically broke, and stranded alone in one of the most expensive, most heartless pleasure resorts in the country.

As often happened when she was deeply absorbed, she reached for a pencil—found one a waitress had left on the table, and the only drawing surface at hand, the back of a menu card—and began to sketch.

might mean playing two games in three days or even three within seven days in the event there were engagements on the preceding and following Saturdays.

If the "Thanksgiving" games remain scheduled for that bleak November 30 when even the turkey hash will have vanished and the prospective customers will have returned to work, some of the games may be played in comparison.

"I wish I were," Christine replied from her heart.

"Then," he asked, "you might consider an offer?"

"Just try making me one," Christine thought.

"You see," he went on, "I have a concession that isn't paying. I should be grateful if you could help me."

"Should you mind," Christine asked, clasping her fingers to keep them from shaking, "explaining what you want?"

"I need some one to do portraits—very much like that, but in color. You'd just stand in a studio near the Boardwalk and draw passers-by at so much each. A fast worker like you should easily make $5 a day. . . . That is!"

He hesitated anxiously—"you'd probably have to pretty some of the customers up a little."

"For $5," Christine told him, "I'm entirely willing to make them all look like movie stars—especially if it will contribute to the self-esteem of the great American public. When do we start?"

Christine had no way of knowing that with her impulsive acceptance of what seemed unbelievable good luck, she plunged into the most tragic events of her life.

WASHINGTON—Reports coming both from Tokyo and London that England had asked the United States to assist in stabilizing Chinese currency found very limited support here.
First there is considerable doubt that China now is especially anxious for her currency to be stabilized, at least if she has to participate in the stabilization. As long as Chinese money was supported by gold or foreign exchange, the Japanese made good use of it by buying up quantities of it in exchange for paper money issued by puppet governments they set up. The Japanese got quantities of foreign exchange and gold that way.
And second, the U. S. Treasury has had peculiar experiences with its agreement with England and France to stabilize their exchange and our own. Treasury officials might be expected to hesitate to join England in an enterprise mostly beneficial to British trade with the Chinese.

Funny Business
Some of the treasury's dealings with England and France have been as funny as a Noel Coward comedy. A few months ago Paris decided to lower the value of the franc a trifle. In accordance with the tri-partite monetary agreement, she was supposed to notify the U. S. and England so they could either object or take steps to protect their own currency.

France gave the notification in due order but had first given the tipoff in Paris so that French currency operators were in a position to take in a neat profit—at the expense of British and American operators.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was thoroughly angered. It happened about that time that he was decorating a coast guardman with a medal. A news reporter, knowing of the French escapade, asked jokingly whether the French were going to decorate him with a medal.
"They already have," replied Morgenthau in the same light spirit. But with a sly grin he added: "With the double cross."

Through various channels this little inside yarn, much garbled, got into the hands of writers for the paper published by Father Coughlin. What should come out but a story criticizing Morgenthau for accepting decorations from a foreign government while this country was trying to preserve its neutrality? The treasury cherishes a copy of the paper.

A British Scheme
More recently England had an eye for devaluing its currency from its approximate $488 level to $150, a cut which would give British traders an advantage over Americans. To see what the response in England and in America might be, rumors of the intended move were "leaked" out to London papers.
Naturally the treasury suspected what was afoot. Treasury officials correspondingly "leaked" a story that any such move by England would bring a cut in dollar values to meet it, England, in no mood to have a currency war just now with the United States, killed the plan.

This little story of the British was told in part by Senator Wagner of New York in recent senate debate to support the President's request for continuation of his power to devalue the currency. Wagner said it demonstrated that the U. S. didn't have to devalue its currency to win currency wars. Just the fact that the President had the power of devaluation, he said, tended to stabilize international exchange.

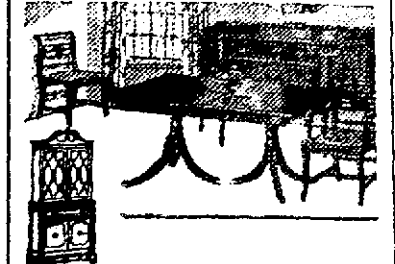

If you want the other side of that argument, consult Senator Glass of Virginia.

Philippines' Strange Child Lives Less Than a Week

MANILA, P. I.—Maria Corazon (Mary Heart) Rafael, born with her heart outside her body, died Monday after less than a week of life.
A lack of oxygen in the blood stream, described by doctors as cyanosis, was the immediate cause of death.
Her death was no surprise to the medical world. Doctors said it would have been a miracle had she survived the rare formation in which the heart lay outside the chest cavity.

Frisch or O'Doul May Succeed Hartnett as Manager of Cubs

Veteran Backstop Is Considered Out in Chicago—Owner Wrigley Hasn't Seen But One Ball Game This Season

By HARRY GAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor
CHICAGO—They say Charles Leo Hartnett has two strikes on him as manager of the Cubs and is fishing for a low, outside curve.
The dope seems to be that either Frank Frisch or Frank O'Doul will succeed him.

It is said that Gabby Hartnett's popularity forced Philip K. Wrigley to name the big backstop last July 21 against his own better judgment.
The chewing gum magnate, you hear, always considered Hartnett one or less of a show-off.

He prefers the more business-like type like William Boyd McKechnie, whom he offered the post during the world series in 1937.

The tipoff, point out those close to the situation, is that Wrigley hadn't seen Hartnett or a ball game since spring when he dropped into his ball yard the other afternoon.

They add that he would appoint a general manager tomorrow . . . put all his baseball affairs in the hands of someone else . . . if he could find a man in whom he had the confidence his father placed in the late William Veck.

Chicago Job One of Best in Business.

Those on the inside insist that the Cubs never were such a state of chaos, and Larry French didn't exactly put in a plug for Hartnett when he went to Wrigley over the pilot's head.

Frankie Frisch speaks of wanting a two-year contract in the event that he returned to the wars, but no doubt would hop at the opportunity to boss the Bruisers subject to a 24-hour recall.

Future Farmers Home From Camp

FFA Group at Laneburg Central High Home From Couchdale

By Gerald Reyenga
The FFA boys of Laneburg Central High returned home from Camp Couchdale on lake Catherine Saturday, August 12. Although not as many made the trip as had been anticipated, every boy reported that he had a splendid time. The fact that the boys stayed through the entire camping week from Monday through Saturday is evidence that they were having a pleasant camping period and were not homesick. The FFA members regretted very much that it was impossible for their chapter adviser, B. W. Cham-

That was one of the few mistakes Joe McCarthy has made.

Jimmy Dykes Blasts Browns' Bonus Plan
James Joseph Dykes blasts Donald Barnes' and all other forms of bonus plans.

The president of the Browns, you know, offered his men $10,000 if they finished sixth, $15,000 if they wound up fifth and $20,000 if they crashed the first division.

"The idea," explains Fred Haney, the field marshal, "was to dispel the idea among players that they are being shipped down the river when they are obtained by St. Louis."

"Our payroll compares favorably with the others."
"Every former member of the Yankees was given a raise when he came to us."

"Other clubs have a psychological advantage over the Browns when their managers tell them, 'Now here you are playing St. Louis. Don't let these underpaid and inferior blokes beat you.'"

But, as Jimmy Dykes points out, it wouldn't have made any difference to him where he played.

Once he has signed a contract, the good ball player needs no added incentive to do his utmost.

After all, the Cardinals have done fairly well in St. Louis for a number of years.

And spending practically his entire career in Sportsman's Park never handicapped a fair to middling first baseman named George Harold Sisler.

What the St. Louis Browns need is ball players . . . not bonuses.

Dodgers Purchase 2 Southern Stars

Chapman and Gilbert of Nashville Bought for Total of $40,000

NEW YORK. — (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers Tuesday announced the purchase for $40,000 of outfielders Charley Gilbert and Calvin Chapman from Nashville of the Southern Association and the exercising of their option on Fletcher Carl Doyle of Memphis.
Gilbert and Chapman may report to the Dodgers after the Southern playoffs. If not, they will join the club next spring. It is indefinite when Doyle will don his new uniform as Memphis is leading the Southern and may get into the Dixie Series.

Gilbert, 20, is a son of Larry Gilbert, Nashville manager who played with the 1914 world champion Boston Braves. He is playing his first season in organized baseball. Chapman, 27, former infielder, was up with the Reds in 1935. The Dodgers paid $20,000 for Doyle's contract. He was with Brooklyn during the spring training but was not in condition to pitch. He has won 12 and lost eight for Memphis, fanning 95 batters in 175 innings.

Arkansas Football Coaches Bemoan Changing of Thanksgiving Holiday

Governor Bailey May Be Called On to Designate November 30 as Thanksgiving Day in Arkansas, Thus Averting a Lot of Grief

LITTLE ROCK—President Roosevelt's announcement that he intended to change the date of Thanksgiving this year caused astonishment and dismay among football coaches and others connected with the game in Arkansas.
The announcement created a serious situation for every college and high school in the state that supports a football team. Virtually all the teams have a traditional rival whom they play on Thanksgiving Day in the season's finale. These games usually attract big crowds. Many of the state's teams depend on Thanksgiving Day game to finance the season for them.

May Appeal to Governor
There was some talk that Governor Bailey is under no obligation to designate the same Thanksgiving date as does President Roosevelt. It was said that the governor might be asked to designate November 30 as Thanksgiving Day in Arkansas, thus averting a lot of grief for football officials, players and fans.

It was impossible to communicate with the governor but he is an ardent football fan and it was considered certain that at least he would give serious consideration to such a request.

A. A. A. Has Complication
Another complication is that the Arkansas Athletic Association, which includes virtually all the larger high schools of the state, has a rule providing that member teams must close their seasons on Thanksgiving Day or the Saturday following.

Since most of the schools have completed their football schedules, it seemed that they would be confronted by the necessity of rearranging schedules unless the association should vote to suspend its closing date rule for this season.

Coaches Upset By News
Most of the Arkansas football coaches are out of the state attending coaching schools at various places but those who were communicated with expressed dismay over the news.
"We'll vote the Republican ticket if he (Roosevelt) interferes with our football," roared Coach W. I. Walton of Ouachita College, Arkadelphia. Walton's Tigers are scheduled to play Hendrix at Conway November 30 and have an off-week the preceding week.

Coach Bob Cowan of North Little Rock High School moaned loudly. His Wildcats traditionally end their season with Little Rock's Tigers in another "classic."

"If it isn't a holiday—well I don't know what we'll do," he said.

May Revise Schedule
BATESVILLE. — (AP) — President Roosevelt's announcement that he intended to change the date for Thanksgiving this year left Boyd Cyfert, business manager for athletics at the University of Arkansas, "surprised and disappointed." Cyfert, here for a meeting with Arkansas alumni, said that if the president made November 23 Thanksgiving instead of November 30, it would find the Southwest Conference Razorbacks sitting idle around the Fayetteville campus.

The Forkers are booked to play a traditional game with Tulsa University at Tulsa on November 30. They play Southern Methodist at Little Rock November 17 and are idle between those dates. Cyfert said if Tulsa did not have a game booked for November 23 they might be able to switch dates. If Tulsa can't advance the game, their only choice would be to delay it until Saturday, December 2, in order to get as big a crowd as possible. He said the effect on the "gate" would probably be thousands of dollars.

Arkansas cannot book another game for the proposed new Thanksgiving, Cyfert said, because it already has 10 games—the Southwest Conference maximum—scheduled this season.
"I'm surprised and disappointed to hear that the president is going to do this," he mourned. "I'll get in touch with Tulsa as soon as I return to my

Anti-British Drive Widened by Japs

Demonstrators Attack Consulate in Shantung Province Port

SHANGHAI, China.—The anti-British campaign in China produced a new outbreak of violence in Chefoo, Shantung province port, where officials advised Monday said demonstrators attacked the British consulate and stoned offices and residences of Britons.

After the demonstrations, in which a number of windows were broken, Japanese authorities were said to have assured the Britons that property would be protected against such attacks in the future. The outbreak occurred Monday.

At Tientsin, North China anti-British leaders adopted resolutions designed to strengthen their drive. The Japanese news agency said the conference decided upon the following steps:

1. To co-ordinate all anti-British activities.
2. To strengthen anti-British organizations and spread the movement throughout China.
3. To "oppress" British interests and Britons.
4. To put pressure on pro-British Chinese.
